Zero to Thrive Translational Network Charter
Implementation Date: June 1, 2020

Zero to Thrive Translational Network Background

The Translational Network was conceived by Zero to Thrive (Z2T) leadership who envisioned that connected and aligned faculty with similar agendas and aims could create more novel, robust work than any individual faculty member. Z2T leadership recognized a desire by many faculty to have an intellectual home among colleagues who are interested in pursuing research, community based programs, advocacy, and training opportunities focused on the health, education, and well-being of families beginning at preconception, through pregnancy, and until the children are eight years of age, with a commitment to multi-generational impacts. A think tank type meeting was held in November 2016 to explore the idea with interested colleagues and the TN was launched in March of 2018 with a retreat. Attending faculty agreed to support the TN with the primary purpose being to find synergy between multiple disciplines and departments across the entire UM campus and to build capacity and an environment that creates real world solutions to difficult social problems.

The group has thus far been launched by Z2T leadership Dr. Kate Rosenblum and Dr. Maria Muzik with resources from Michigan Medicine & the Department of Psychiatry. Dr. Alison Miller has been instrumental in the initial planning, development, and execution of the TN. The TN has met three times including a January 2020 meeting to review the Z2T Strategic Plan. The TN has had some early successes: 1. Identification of Z2T relevant UM classes (August 2019); 2. Research and Policy Perspectives on Separating (and Reconnecting) Children and Parents: Implications for Families on the Border, panel discussion and report (July 2018); 3. Focus on Health Equity: Mom Power Focus Groups (March 2020); 4. Z2T responses to COVID-19 – multiple infographics, press interactions, and publications of a coloring story book to help young children process the pandemic (zerotothrive.org); 5. Published collaborative papers: most recently, Developmental Differences in the Association of Peer Relationships with Traumatic Stress Symptoms in Prevention Science, Dr. Rebeccah Sokol primary author.

In the fall of 2019 Z2T added a Strategic Director, H. Lynette Biery, PA-C, MSc who brings relevant administrative skills to assist with the implementation, execution, and promotion of the TN. A strategic plan has been developed and includes an objective aimed at expanding the breadth and reach of the TN. The added staff resource will ensure that we are able to more efficiently move our collective agenda along and see the TN achieve many successes.

The overarching purpose of a charter is to align TN members’ expectations, focus, and efforts around an agreed upon organizational purpose and scope. The TN Charter is grounded in the Z2T vision and mission and formalizes the Translational Network’s scope, objectives, operations, and deliverables so that the group’s collective synergy can create innovative solutions to lingering social problems.

Zero to Thrive Vision & Mission

Vision: From pregnancy through early childhood all families will have the well-being necessary to achieve their full potential.
Mission: To spark robust scientific discoveries, quality training, and vibrant cross-sector initiatives that create breakthrough, real-world solutions to transform the well-being and resilience of families from conception to early childhood with impacts for generations to come.

Positioning Statement: Zero to Thrive is built on the premise that the period from pregnancy through early childhood is an especially sensitive and fruitful time to mitigate the multi-generational effects of inequity, trauma, and adversity and promote health, education, and well-being. We believe that providing families, from the start, with cutting-edge treatment and tools needed to sustain nurturing, supportive relationships will serve as a protective buffer that allows families to thrive now and into the next generation. Zero to Thrive will therefore harness the power of collaboration across the University of Michigan and with communities to create a portfolio of advocacy initiatives, research, treatment, and training that support well-being and resilience across two generations.

Zero to Thrive Translational Network Purpose

The Z2T Translational Network exists to create multi-disciplinary collaboration, align advocacy agendas, create opportunities to embed the community in research and program development, incubate novel solutions to unsolved problems, and train the next generation of professionals. TN collaborations, projects, and advocacy will align with Zero to Thrive’s vision, mission, and positioning statement.

Zero to Thrive Translational Network Scope

The Translational Network is an intellectual home for UM faculty members interested in the perinatal to early childhood period and in having a multi-generational impact. We define perinatal as the time period in a woman and her family’s life as preconception through the first year postpartum and early childhood as age 0 – 8. Multidisciplinary collaboration is a hallmark of the TN as we strive to spark and incubate novel ideas to solve difficult social and health problems. The TN will build momentum for our collective agenda of mitigating the effects of inequity, trauma, and adversity and improving health outcomes and well-being across generations.
